

A Morning Full of Gifts

Open your eyes. Open your arms.

I opened my eyes.
“Where's Dad?”
“Here I am!”

Dad opened the curtains.
In came the light.
Light... and more light!

I opened my hands.
Dad tickled my fingers.
I giggled. "Again!"

I pointed to the cup. “Water!”
Then to the plate. “Bread!”

“Gifts from Allah,” said Dad.
“Alhamdulillah.”
“Alhamdulillah,” I said.

Dad opened his arms.
I opened mine.
One big hug...
and a giggly start to the day!

Read it together

Within the 0-2 stage • full read-aloud text aimed around 18-24 months.

Open your hands with the repeated words. Give your child time to point to the water or bread. One picture may be enough. Offer a hug if your child wants one; joining in is an invitation, never a test.

An original fictional story. Ethical reference: Quran 14:32-34. No historical event or direct scripture quotation is presented in the child's story.

Alhamdulillah: all praise is due to Allah. Bismillah: in the name of Allah.