

My Turn, Your Turn

Shared reading · Birth to two

We sat on the rug.
Between Dad and me was a big soft ball.

Dad rolled it towards me.
“Your turn.”

The ball reached my knees.
I hugged it.

Then I gave it a little push.
“My turn,” said Dad.

The ball went back to him.
Then he rolled it once more.
Your turn... my turn... your turn.

The ball stopped between us.
We looked at it.
Then a new turn began.

Read and talk together

An original fictional read-aloud. The full text is aimed around 18–24 months within the birth-to-two stage.

Use a large, soft, age-appropriate ball on a clear floor. Stay close and away from stairs. Say “My turn... your turn” slowly. Watching or one touch is enough to join in.
